CLOUR	FORM	PARTY LEADER	0005
	21221	CONSERVATIVE PARTY David Cameron Likely front runner with proven stamina, should be thereabouts at the finish
	22112	LABOUR PARTY Ed Milliband Proven form but jockey boogie a major concern, improved recently but exposed and prone to the odd mistake
	43333	LIBERAL DEMOCRAT PARTY Nick Clegg Best form behind them and certainly not the force of old, uncertainty a major worry and jockey's early promise never really materialised
	20065	SCOTTISH NATIONAL PARTY Nicola Sturgeon Recent jockey change may undoubtedly help increase support, relatively unexposed and sure to have a big say in the result
	-00	UKIP Nigel Farage A real outsider and maybe one for the future but probably best watched for the time being
	-006	GREEN PARTY Natalie Bennett Excellent credentials and will no doubt have big support, but unlikely to play a part in the result at this level
	00087	PLAID CYMRU Leanne Wood Largely unknown outside Wales and unlikely to play any part

VERDICT: There is wide open the race and although likely to be dominated by the top two in the betting the result will surely be heavily influenced by the support of others. Labour Party likely to make the early running in the polls but it is expected that CONSERVATIVE PARTY will prevail ahead of a very nervous merged party.
